Bovine bash involves Bud Lites in Boxford

A roving group of rogue bovines led police on a slow pursuit before they crashed a backyard party recently in Boxford.

Lt. James Riter said he responded to a call for some loose cows in the street about 9 p.m. Sunday. When he arrived at the reported location of the escaped cows he found "evidence" of their presence there.

He drove down the road a bit until he caught up with the six cows who made their way to the backyard of a house.

"The cows had come around the corner where a group of young adults was sitting out at a table having a few beers on a nice night," said Riter, a 21-year veteran who has previously been chased by goats and turkeys while at work.

Riter said he heard some amused screams that led him to the backyard where he found the cows at the table, which the group had fled for the safety of a nearby deck.

At least one of the cows was drinking beer that had spilled when they knocked over the cans and cups.

When asked what was the reaction of the homeowner and visitors, Riter said it was wonderment.

"Imagine that bunch of people sitting out on a nice night and the next thing they know they are joined by a herd of cows that drank their beer," he said.

Police were able to contact the cows' owner who came to the home with a friend. Armed with a bucket of grain, the owner was able to coax the cows to the front yard.

Riter and another officer rode in cruisers positioned at the front and rear of the herd while the owner coaxed them a mile up the road back to their enclosure.

No one was hurt and the only damage was to some chewed up grass and plants.

Weekend disruptions coming for Orange Line

Buses will soon replace Orange Line service north of Boston on some weekends as work gets under way on the new Assembly Square station in Somerville.

The first weekend bus diversion is scheduled for June 9 starting at 5 a.m. and lasting through 5 a.m. June 11, said Lydia Rivera, a T spokeswoman.

Buses will replace trains between Sullivan and Oak Grove stations. The bus service will mirror the Orange Line route and T personnel will direct riders to the replacement service.

While the weekend diversion service will occur sporadically during the early summer, it will expand to include weeknight evenings by the end of summer, Rivera said.

An earlier project update from the T said they expected service to be interrupted for 18 weeks and 175 nonconsecutive weeknights starting at 9 p.m. those nights. METRO/MN

$29.2M The construction of the new Assembly Square station will cost nearly $30 million. The MBTA awarded a $29.2 million construction contract in October.

Assembly Square station

Construction is already ongoing at the Assembly Square station.

- The stop, the first new rapid transit stop in more than 20 years, will be built between Wellington and Sullivan stations.
- Assembly Square is being redeveloped as a mixed-used, transit-oriented development with more than 2 million square feet of retail and office space.
- AMC Theatres signed on to build a movie theater in the development, according to the Globe.
- More than 2,000 residential units are expected to be constructed.

Opinion

TOM FOREMAN
POLITICAL CORRESPONDENT FOR CNN

WALKING THE PRESIDENTIAL PLANK

The heaving surf and blustery winds of the presidential race provoked a rash act on Mitt Romney's would-be ship of state this week. With little warning and undeniable bravery (or foolishness) Captain Romney stalked out to the edge of a political plank to make a bold proclamation about what his first term would bring.

"I can tell you that over a period of four years, by virtue of the policies that we put in place, we get the unemployment rate down to 6 percent, or perhaps a little lower," he told Time's Mark Halperin.

And in the waters below, the political critics beat the waves to foam and gnashed their teeth, because they know if he is elected and this plank breaks, he's shark bait.

Of course, that has never stopped candidates before. Oh sure, most of the time they stick with vague pledges to bring immeasurable things like, oh say, hope and change. But in every election, the big players always figure they have to put a few solid promises into play, and the unemployment situation is always an attractive target.

President Barack Obama has strolled along the same plank. Just before taking office, his team issued an assessment of the stimulus plan that projected it would keep unemployment below 8 percent. Contrary to Republican claims, this was not precisely a promise, and the administration has acknowledged that their team's read on the economy's resilience was overly optimistic. Still, the impression remains among many voters that Mr. Obama made a pledge and unemployment has been above 8 percent pretty much ever since.

The real problem with making promises about the unemployment rate is that they are almost always destined to be broken. There are simply too many factors involved — factors that presidents can't control. Still, you can understand the appeal for the candidates: Even if it's risky, the view of the White House is just magnificent from the end of the plank.

Fidelity, Knight problems add to Nasdaq's Facebook woes

The repercussions from Facebook's botched initial public offering deepened on Thursday as Fidelity Investments found itself dealing with "thousands" of customers with order problems and Knight Capital demanded tens of millions of dollars in compensation from Nasdaq for trading-related losses.

A technical glitch delayed Facebook's market debut by half an hour on Friday and many client orders were delayed subsequently, costing some investors and traders big losses as the stock price dropped after an initial gain

The exchange operator is facing lawsuits from investors and threats of legal action from brokers that have been compensating customers for delayed trades.

Action on Facebook stock has essentially become secondary to the fallout from the IPO — its price, its size, its execution and questions about selective disclosure of its financial prospects.

U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission, the Financial Industry Regulatory Authority and Massachusetts Secretary of the Commonwealth William Galvin are looking into how the IPO was handled. The U.S. Senate Banking Committee is also reviewing the matter. REUTERS

Possible problem

Nasdaq also has to contend with the outside prospect that it could entirely lose the Facebook listing after having just obtained it.

Long-term market play: Facebook seen at $22

Facebook Inc. may fall more than 42 percent below its initial public offering price by the end of the year, according to bets by structured-product investors.

She most actively traded structured products tied to Facebook since its IPO have been so-called put warrants, whose buyers profit if the shares drop below a pre-defined level, in some cases as low as $22, data compiled by Bloomberg show. UBS AG, Commerzbank AG and Julius Baer Group Ltd. are among lenders that listed 1,504 warrants and certificates in Europe linked to shares of the social networking site that were offered at $38.

Since raising $16 billion on May 17 in the biggest technology IPO of all time, Facebook has tumbled. BLOOMBERG

▶ Advisers familiar with the situation at Fidelity said many investors are now finding out, nearly a week after the fact, that their orders were not executed at the prices they thought.

EU urges Greece to stay, plans for possible exit

BRUSSELS. European Union leaders, advised by senior officials to prepare contingency plans in case Greece decides to quit the single currency, urged the country to stay the course on austerity and complete the reforms demanded under its bailout program.

After nearly six hours of talks held during an informal dinner, leaders said they were committed to Greece remaining in the euro zone, but it had to stick to its side of the bargain too, a commitment that will mean a heavy cost for Greeks.

"We want Greece to stay in the euro, but we insist that Greece sticks to commitments that it has agreed to," German Chancellor Angela Merkel told reporters after a Wednesday evening summit in Brussels dragged long into the night. REUTERS

'Chernobyl Diaries'

Director: Bradley Parker
Cast: Jesse McCartney, Olivia Dudley
Rating: R
Grade: ●●○○○

▶ It's a nuclear waste of a film.

There isn't much redemption in watching a film like "Chernobyl Diaries." Then again, there's not supposed to be. As a gratuitous spectacle set at the now-abandoned site of the world's worst nuclear disaster, a group of tourists get stranded only to discover they're not alone. Oren Peli's ("Paranormal Activity") script isn't wholly original, but mere suggestion and shaky cinematography will likely be enough to sell many tickets.

STEVE GOW

▶ Josh Brolin, who plays Tommy Lee Jones' 1969 counterpart in 'Men in Black 3,' takes our time-travel pop quiz

Brolin in Black

Josh Brolin knew he was taking on a challenge when he signed on to play a younger version of Tommy Lee Jones in the time travel-themed "Men in Black 3." But how ready was he for the challenge of Metro's Time-Travel Pop Quiz?

1 First of all, how many gigawatts are required to energize the flux capacitor?
Um ... 360,000?
Nope, 1.21.
I'm glad I got that so wrong. [Laughs]

2 While time-traveling, can you interact with your past or future self, or would that cause a catastrophic event?
It would cause a catastrophic event. But Boris the Animal does [in "Men in Black 3"]. I just know that time-travel, as is understood by Hollywood and their storytelling, has been if you in any way affect the past that you go into, that it always has a negative effect on the future. That's what I've been told, at least.

Q&A

OK, you can only make one time-travel trip. Would you rather go forward or backward?

Wow. That's a great question. Forward, for sure. Selfishly, I'd like to backward because there's a lot of people that I would love to meet, you know? Obviously a lot of very important people from your Jesuses to your Mahatma Gandhis to the obvious. But if you go forward, you can see what actually is the consequence of what we're doing now, come back and actually have proof that will happen if we don't change. But then everyone will think you're crazy, of course. But I already have to deal with that anyway, so that's really par for the course for me. [Laughs]

3 Speaking of: Say you travel back in time and you arrive standing alone in front of a young Adolf Hitler. What do you do?
Befriend. That'd be the best way to get in there, and then you can detour him. Befriend and detour.

4 What kind of adventure did Bill and Ted have?
An excellent one. When I met Keanu Reeves, that was the first thing I said. I was like, "Bill and Ted, right on dude!" I did "SNL" recently and we did "The Californians," and I think that was what I did, some version of guys I grew up with and Keanu Reeves in that movie. It's funny because they came up to me during rehearsal and were like, "We'd like you to do more of a California voice." And I said, "Dude, honestly, being from California, I'm doing the only voice that's California. Everybody else is doing the funny version. I think I'm just doing the accurate version."

5 In "Terminator," is Arnold Schwarzenegger a cyborg, an alien or a wacky twin?
A cyborg, of course. But a different type of cyborg than Robert Patrick in No. 2, right? What's it called?
The T-1000.
The T-1000. Very good, man. You know your stuff.

6 Which movie, in your opinion, gets time-travel the most right?
God, man. "Time Bandits" by Terry Gilliam was probably my favorite time-travel movie that I've seen, just because it was so fantastical, and Terry Gilliam is such a brilliant director. Like "Brazil" and "Fear and Loathing," the lenses that he uses are so warped and all that. It's brilliant. I like that movie a lot.
A lot of people say "Back to the Future."
To me, "Time Bandits" was a different level of it. "Back to the Future" is fun and kind of like, [in a Valley Girl voice] "Oh my God, it's so much fun! He's skateboarding and it's a rocket! Oh my God!" [Laughs] I haven't seen "Time Bandits" in a while, I need to watch it again.

7 I'll give you a chance to redeem yourself on the gigawatts question if you can tell me how fast the DeLoreon in "Back to the Future" has to go to travel through time.
Oh God, I know this. Sixty-five?
Eighty-eight.
F—! I wouldn't get very far.

Coming back for the kids

Will Smith speaks on his return to movies (and those for families in particular) with 'Men in Black 3' before he goes 'butt and gut'

WILSON WEBB

It's been nearly four years since Will Smith has had a movie out — his last being the weepy dud "Seven Pounds" — so you'll understand if he wanted to ease his way back into things with something a bit familiar. "I haven't worked in three years, so I wanted to put on some shoes that I knew fit," Smith says. Hence "Men in Black 3," re-teaming Smith with Tommy Lee Jones as the black-suited, Ray Bans-donning men of mystery keeping Earth safe from aliens its citizens aren't even aware of. This time, they toss in the element of time-travel — but it's still very much a "Men in Black" film.

"It was very important for me, having been away that long, to come back in a way that I was comfortable and to come back with a project that was kid-friendly," Smith says. "That was something that Eddie Murphy said to me a few years ago. He said, 'Man, if you're lucky enough to be in this business, every 20 years you have to go back and get the kids.' I was looking at 'Dr. Doolittle' and 'The Klumps' and everything, the idea of maturing. What's great for me is that that target audience is in my house."

Quoted

"It was very important for me, having been away that long, to come back in a way that I was comfortable and to come back with a project that was kid-friendly."
SMITH

That wasn't the only piece of wisdom from his elders Smith has held on to, as it turns out. "I was in Australia in 1990 with Sylvester Stallone, Arnold Schwarzenegger and Bruce Willis, and they were opening Planet Hollywood," Smith remembers. "I go sit there with those guys, and Arnold says, 'Young man, I want you to know that you cannot be a movie star only in the United States. You're only a movie star if they know you around the world.' They put that idea into my mind very clearly, and then from that point that's when I started to make it a point to open in new markets. We went into Russia with 'I, Robot.' It used to be a time where you could just have hit movies in the United States, but that's not the case. So, to me it's just about taking those laps around the world to maintain that."

So with that kind of global stardom in mind, does that mean Smith will continue easing his way back into acting, possibly with a visit to another popular franchise like "Bad Boys"? Because co-star Martin Lawrence has certainly expressed interest. Smith is not so sure. "I love making those movies. It's Miami, the tight T-shirt and fast cars," he says. "But just at this point in my career, the material has to be right. I'm 43. I'm looking at maybe seven more years where I can run and jump a little bit, and then I'm going butt and gut for the rest of my career."

In this Noel Coward comedy, a former husband and wife unexpectedly run into each other in the most awkward of settings: On honeymoon with their new spouses! The tension between them, both romantic and antagonistic, is alive and well. Will they be sensible and move on with their lives? Of course not — where would the fun be in that?

The national debt is never as juicy of a political topic as stuff like gay marriage or gun control, but these authors, in their book "White House Burning," warn that if we don't get the debt under control, pretty soon, there will be no America left to have those other debates in. And you thought your student loans were a pain!

Guerilla Opera, true to its name, stages contemporary works that push the boundaries of opera, telling unconventional stories and departing from the standard classical orchestra in its methods and styles of accompaniment. In this work, written and scored by Rudolf Rojahn, a farmer who has invented a more efficient slaughtering device faces opposition from his activist daughter.

This L.A.-based rapper has a relentlessly creative mind — not a single one of his tracks sounds like the one before it. One second he's flexing an impressively elastic flow over a baroque flute loop, the next he's spittin' dizzying, socially incisive rhymes over what sounds like a computer on acid. We don't care where this bus is headed — we're getting on. MATTHEW DINARO

Admit it: You never grew out of that dinosaur phase at age 6, and when you heard Franklin Park Zoo was playing host to a herd of animatronic dinosaurs this summer, you were stoked. As if the campy pleasure of a life-sized fake dinosaur zoo weren't enough, this exhibit's filled with fascinating info, making it prime edutainment.

Curtis Stone dishes about '80 Plates'

On "Around the World in 80 Plates," Bravo's cross between "The Amazing Race" and "Top Chef," cheftestants travel the world and complete culinary challenges based on the culture of the city they're in. Though the series is sending its competitors everywhere from England to Morocco, you don't have to leave your kitchen to add some of the global flair host Curtis Stone says you can bring to any Americana dish.

"That's the great thing about a show like this — there's all sorts of inspiration to be taken from so many different sorts of people," he says.

Here, Stone shares some lessons he learned abroad.

Italy: Customs are important

"The culture in Tuscany was so steeped in tradition, and some of our contestants tried to do stuff that was a little out there — they were just like, 'That's not in season right now!' 'Basil in a ribollita? Why?'"

France: Explore your food

"[In our episode in France] they taste cheeses and have to identify which are made with sheep's milk. I think that opens your eyes to be like, 'Oh, sheep's milk, cow's milk, goat's milk — what's the difference?' They also do a wine challenge where they have to match a bowl of ingredients that have the same aromas that the wine has. Watching something like that makes you think, 'OK, I'm gonna look out for some of those flavors next time.'"

Thailand: One base, many dishes

"In Chiang Mai, they do so much in a mortar and pestle. They use things like galangal, which is similar to ginger, and they use ginger, lemongrass, lime leaves (used similarly to how we use bay leaves), palm sugar, lime rinds, garlic, cilantro, fresh chilies — all that's pounded together to create this delicious paste. It's so adaptable, whether it goes in a green papaya salad or a curry."

Spice it up

Spices add exotic finesse to any meal. "If you're talking about a burger, you can do Thai burgers, Moroccan burgers — you can do all these different things," Stone says. His top spices for rich flavors:

- Paprika
- Cumin
- Cayenne
- Fennel seeds and fennel a la grecque
- Fresh herbs (not dried)

‘Bye Bye Liver: The Drinking Play’ is exactly what it sounds like ◗ Show creator Byron Hatfield says Hub is the perfect city to perform a comedy show like this

If you go

‘Bye Bye Liver: The Drinking Play’
Fridays through Aug. 31
Oberon
2 Arrow St., Cambridge

All bar-goers will recognize them: That girl who should never ever drink alcohol (but does), the power-tripping bouncer at the door, that awkward could-be couple who both need a few shots to loosen up.

“These people are frighteningly universal,” says Byron Hatfield, creator of “Bye Bye Liver,” a sketch comedy show about drinking culture. “It’s a play on how we use alcohol to influence our behavior at bars, whether it’s winning over romance or trying to get a laugh out of somebody.”

The premise works anywhere — thus the show’s five-year success in Chicago, and its spread to eight major U.S. cities. Hatfield adapts the show for each market and has been here for months researching.

“In Boston you’ve got a lot of really nice local breweries, and people drink well,” he says. “There’s nice wine in just regular pubs, which is something you don’t find in a lot of cities.”

Hatfield wants to make one thing clear: “The show is a satire, it’s not a celebration of overindulgence. Getting drunk for one night and doing something stupid is funny; getting drunk for the 20th night in a row is not.”

The show’s humor will resonate with crowds because it speaks to experiences everyone’s had, Hatfield explains.

“I feel like people laugh the most when they’re laughing at themselves,” he says. “And alcohol provides people with ample opportunity to do that.”

Passing the bar

“The level of talent I’ve found in Boston is hilarious,” says Hatfield. His cast includes MIT and Brown graduates, as well as a Shakespearean actor. “It’s the most well-educated cast I could ever have for a sketch show. Only in Boston.”

Rock down to this 'Avenue'

Lyric pulls off an A-grade 'Q' The Tony-winning production works surprisingly well in a small theater

MARK S. HOWARD

... And these are the puppets in your neighborhood.

"Avenue Q" is a great show, but it's not something every theater company can do. More than half the cast are puppets, and there's an overall look to the production that's both difficult to achieve and costly to capture.

Not so for the Lyric Stage Company. Its take on the Tony Award-winning musical is blisteringly funny and also one of the finest productions they've ever done.

Part of the magic of the Lyric's production is the brilliant scenic design of Kathryn Kawecki. Even if you've seen the show on Broadway, the moment you walk into this theater, you know you're about to go someplace unlike anywhere else you've been.

On "Avenue Q" a group of twentysomethings share this city block as they try to navigate their way through early adulthood. Musical awakenings like "It Sucks to Be Me," "Everyone's a Little Bit Racist" and "I Wish I Could Go Back to College" might feel generation-specific, but they play to the heart and funny bone of everyone.

In order for this show to work, you have to believe the puppets are as real as the humans they interact with. The moment John Ambrosino steps on stage, his puppet Princeton comes to life in a brilliant display of acting, puppetry and voice that makes you see gestures and facial expressions that just can't happen.

Erica Spyres is equally convincing as his love interest Kate Monster. When she closes the first act with "There's a Fine, Fine Line" you'd swear there are tears streaming down her furry cheeks.

As with most feel-good musicals, everything works out in the end. But getting there on "Avenue Q" is about as much fun as you'll ever have in a theater.

NICK DUSSAULT

Though "Avenue Q" is a puppet show, it's not suitable for children. Mature themes, adult language and hot, steamy (but ridiculously funny) puppet sex await you.

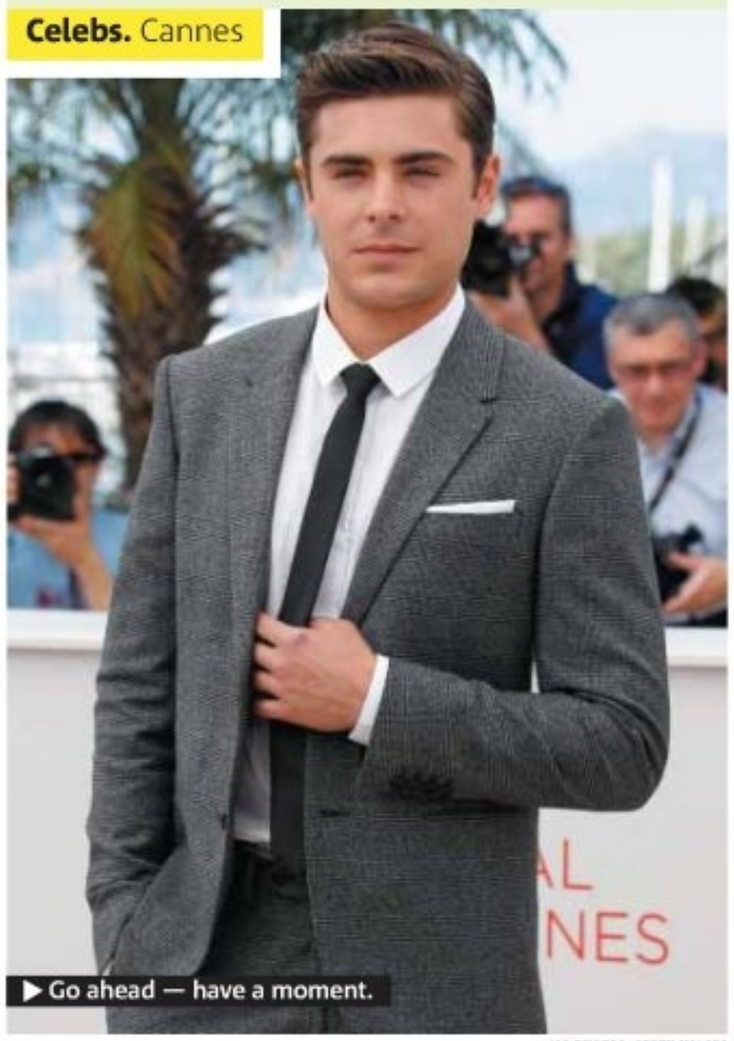
Celebs. Cannes



▶ Go ahead — have a moment.

ALL PHOTOS: GETTY IMAGES

Weekend swoon: Efron in Cannes

We didn't really want to talk about how Nicole Kidman relieves Zac Efron's jellyfish sting in their new film, "Paperboy." But we needed an excuse to run this photo as large as possible, so here goes: She had to pee on him. And yes, it was awkward. "I don't think I was supposed to be comfortable," the actor said at a press conference. "This character is learning the ways of the world. That can be uncomfortable."

Pitt living it up at Cannes Film Fest

Although he insists there's no date set for his wedding to Angelina Jolie, Brad Pitt has been treating the Cannes Film Festival like a bit of a bachelor party.

At a black-tie after-party for his new film "Killing Them Softly," the actor partied with everyone from Kylie Minogue to Diddy — who stopped by for a congrats drink before getting back to his yacht — and put back some expensive booze. "With Brad's impending wedding, it almost had the feel of a sophisticated pre-bachelor party, with bottles of $390 Johnnie Walker whiskey and plenty of cigars," a guest who we assume didn't arrive by yacht tells Us Weekly. "It was definitely a night for Brad to remember."

You'd think so. But then again, swanky whiskey with Diddy on the Riviera might be Brad Pitt's equivalent of warm wine-coolers with the cat.

Straight up now, Paula

No matter what an unauthorized Simon Cowell biography says, Paula Abdul claims she never had a relationship with her former "American Idol" boss. "It would never, ever happen because he's selfish and he'd be a selfish lover and he'd call his own name out during sex if it ever happened," Abdul tells Wendy Williams in an interview.

Paula, why do we have a feeling that you're speaking from experience here?

A Clear and present danger

RE: "CLEAR CHANNEL KILLED THE RADIO STAR": I cannot express my outrage upon hearing about Clear Channel's takeover of WFNX and layoff of Julie Kramer. Kramer's "Leftover Lunch" reminds us of where the music we love today comes from and her charm and wit are unsurpassed in the Boston radio scene. Save WFNX and save Julie Kramer!
SETH BROWN, VIA E-MAIL

Looks like Clear Channel just swallowed up another cool radio station in the community. They are happy to 'add them to the Clear Channel family' they say. They also mention how they love radio as much as we do. Shah! Look out for their next big move, acquiring the Hunger Games and adding it the family. They love 'games' as much as we do, in fact it's just a matter of time before they host the first annual event in a community near you!
WALTER PURCELL, VIA E-MAIL

Congrats on ruining yet another radio station. Boston needs another mindless, vapid, unlistenable MIKE FM like we need another station playing conservative puke Rush Limbaugh. You've wasted your money buying WFNX because I will never listen to one second of the garbage you are sure to put on the frequency band 101.7 FM. Clear Channel, you are the poison of broadcasting. You represent everything that is wrong with America and I long for the day when you find out what it's like to be fired en masse. We, the thinking, music-loving public, hate your ever-lovin' guts and wish you nothing but blistering pain and long-suffering poverty. You're a pox on society.
JD LUCAS, VIA E-MAIL

It's the government, stupid

It amazes me that in Boston, one of the self-professed most educated cities in America, people continue to bleat the Democrat line about evil bankers and vulture capitalists, it's like watching clapping seals asking for more fish every November. It was the government that blew a hole in our economy. with Fannie, Freddie and other extraconstitutional adventures in subsidies. And the self-professed "most educated" among us presume to tell us that more government involvement in the economy is the answer? No wonder college students are so angry — if I paid six figures for an alleged education and still employed this kind of logic, I'd balk at paying back my loans, too.
NICK MCNULTY, MEDFORD

Looking for a villain-elle

RE: "POETRY, NOT JUST FOR INFIDELS ANYMORE": Richard Sherman is absolutely correct; the Taliban are a collection of murderous and sacrilegious thugs who demean the piety of the religion they claim to practice. I await Mr. Sherman's equally brutal rejection of the North Carolina Baptist Church, whose pastor, Charles L. Worley, recently called for death camps for gays and lesbians, and the Catholic Church, which is still shielding confessed child molesters from the law.

Horoscope

♊ Gemini May 21-June 20. If you feel insecure for some reason, be careful not to slip up and try to impress others with false airs or pretenses. You're perfectly good being just the way you are.
♋ Cancer June 21-July 22. You'll be sorry if you confuse wishful thinking with intuitive insights. If your hunches don't play out, you'll end up being unhappy and sorely disappointed.
♌ Leo July 23-Aug. 22. It's more than likely that you might not be as good at reading the intentions of others as you think you are. Don't make the mistake of judging your friends' actions in advance.
♍ Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22. It might take more effort than usual to convince your close associates that your idea and concepts are good. People in general tend to be a bit more skeptical than usual at this point.
♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23. Play it smart and don't offer any unsolicited advice to co-workers regarding something you know little about. If you're wrong, it'll make you look bad.
♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22. Treat the property of others with the same care and respect you show to all your possessions. If a mishap should occur through carelessness, you will be held accountable.
♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21. Don't make the mistake of assuming your mate will automatically be in accord with you regarding a vital matter. Don't be sorry afterward, check first and avoid some serious conflict.
♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19. Have all the instructions in front of you when attempting to do something new and difficult. If your memory is faulty, you might not be able to correct any mistakes on your part.
♒ Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 19. Steer clear of an involvement in which the elements of chance are extremely pronounced. Regardless of how lucky you usually are, the odds might not hold up this time.
♓ Pisces Feb. 20-March 20. Your advice to someone who needs a lot of counsel might not be sound. In your desire to spare this person any pain, you might not be as frank as you should be.
♉ Taurus April 20-May 20. Sharpen up if you find yourself negotiating with a shrewd horse trader. If you are not careful, your desire to get a bargain could cause you to slip and negotiate in a way that works against you. BERNICE BEDE OSOL

In the news

Weekend slate
Boston is playing its best ball of the season, thanks to the starting rotation's recent improvement. Jon Lester faces Tampa's Alex Cobb on Friday, Josh Beckett takes on David Price on Saturday and Jeremy Hellickson and Clay Buchholz go head-to-head Sunday. Detroit will see Felix Doubront on Monday.

Game 7: Celtics-76ers Saturday at TD Garden (series tied 3-3)

C's must brawl for it all

One final battle Rondo's play dipped in Game 6 Third-quarter winner is 6-0 in series Celts need to slow down Jrue Holiday, Lou Williams Celts have lost last two Game 7s

They never make it easy, do they?

The Celtics' inability to close out games once again leads us to a decisive Game 7 in Boston against a 76ers team that now has all the confidence in the world.

Boston had its chance to close out the Sixers on Wednesday and could have had at least two days rest before Game 1 of the Eastern Conference finals. Now, they'll have just one day off before Game 1 on Monday – that is, if they get there.

Three things that have to happen for Boston to advance:

1 OVERCOME INJURIES
The news on Avery Bradley has gone from bad to worse, with The Boston Globe reporting that he's most likely out for the remainder of the postseason after dislocating his left shoulder multiple times. That's a huge blow to a Boston team that has thrived off of Bradley's defense and timely shooting. The Celtics' two replacements, Ray Allen and Mickael Pietrus, haven't stepped up the way they need to in Bradley's absence. Allen is dealing with an ankle issue of his own, but Pietrus is healthy. The C's will need production from one or the other tomorrow.

2 GET IN THE PAINT
Poor Doc Rivers. He's making the most of what he has, but with Ryan Hollins and Greg Stiemsma as the only backup centers to Kevin Garnett, times are tough. Not only could the Celtics not stop Philly down low in Game 6 — whether it was a Sixers big or a guard — they couldn't establish a presence on the offensive end either. They were outscored in the paint 42-16. Kevin Garnett must also take some blame. He took 20 shots in Game 6. Guess how many came in the paint? Zero. Time to establish something down low.

3 WHAT'S AT STAKE
Saturday could very well be the last game of the Big Three era. Kevin Garnett becomes a free agent, as does Ray Allen. Danny Ainge has reportedly tried trading Pierce in the past, and we all know he's tried trading Rajon Rondo. The C's play their best basketball when their backs are against the wall. Being in front of the home crowd should push them over the top and on to the next round. But then again, who can figure this team out?

1982 flashback?

The 76ers did the near impossible 30 years ago, knocking off the fabled Celtics in a Game 7 at Boston Garden.

- Philadelphia head coach Doug Collins is confident that his young Sixers can pull off the upset: "I want more. I'm going to get greedy. We've fought and worked and gone through a lot. We've grown."
- Game 7 Since 1982, there have been 60 Game 7s in the NBA. The road team has won just 11 of them.
